Germany's Angela Merkel has downplayed Russia's annexation of Crimea in 2014 as "Putin not being a blunderer". The German chancellor also urged him to lift sanctions on Russian businesses and to release several groups of pro-democracy activists. Mr Putin's spokesman said Russia would not "formally" agree to any form of easing of sanctions. The countries have been working on an agreement to restore diplomatic relations and trade. The next stage, he said, would be to organise the summit on top of the world between Russia, Ukraine, Germany and France. The spokesman said he was not aware that Mrs Merkel had told Mr Putin in

The objective was to identify common beliefs and uncover any patterns in the way patients understood food and food-related matters. Although there was no association between specific beliefs and diagnoses, patients with eating disorders and obsession-compulsion disorders had more beliefs in the following areas than controls: weight and eating, daily meals, nutrition, weight gain, negative effects of eating, and the prevention of being fat. Patients' beliefs were generally more positive than negative. These findings are discussed in terms of the literature on beliefs in a variety of mental disorders, as well as implications for nutrition education. E.2d at 946.
